FROM A PRISON CELL.

Barrett Writes That He Was Wrongfully Convicted and Sentenced.

Bitterly Condemns the Action of J. S. Chaffey

And Pleads For a Chance to "Get Even" With Him in Court.

Boston, Nov. 25.—The long silence of Barrett is at last broken, and yesterday he placed in the hands of a Post reporter a statement in reference to his life and his relations with Chaffey.

He states that it is a desire to clear his name from all the odium that has been thrown upon it by Chaffey and his friends, coupled with a wish to clear his wife from any knowledge of his life in Boston, and to vindicate her in the eyes of the public, that induces him to make this confession.

The letter goes on to say: "I am an Englishman and was born in the county of Staffordshire. About 20 years ago I emigrated to this country and came to Boston, where I lived until my arrest and imprisonment. I was altogether in the hands of my solicitor during the trial."

"I was never in a court where a jury sat before. I was utterly ignorant of the forms of law. I did not know that I had the right to address the jury on my own behalf without being cross-examined. My attorneys told me that to speak would be against their wishes and advice. I did not speak. Now, I find that my silence has been construed as evidence against me. It was an admission that I was guilty of having killed Farrar, as his brothers maintained I had killed him, with premeditation and malice."

"I never wished to admit anything of the sort, and to this day maintain that I did not shoot James Farrar, either by accident or design. He was shot in the struggle, but not by me. We were locked together on the ground, when I heard the revolver shot, and immediately knew that Farrar was hit, and hit fatally."

Barrett then reviews the testimony given at his trial, and claims that it was changed for the express purpose of convicting him. He concludes his argument by stating that "every effort was made to keep me from getting even the semblance of a fair trial, and as a result I am where you see me today."

"I would like to speak in reference to Chaffey in his attempt to throw on me all the blame for his crimes. He is an Englishman like myself and was born in London, and that is the only bond of unity that ever existed between us. My brother-in-law, the same mother never bore us. I regard Chaffey as a man cruel, vindictive and treacherous. It is he who threw on me the odium of my arrest. During all my trial he pretended to be my friend, but was not."

"But I will get even with him yet. I will do all in my power to aid the police in bringing him to justice. I know him as a burglar and a fence, and I will prove my statements in court. Once it was he who burglarized the houses and obtained the stuff. I never did."

"I am confined in prison, I firmly believe, as the result of a conspiracy on the part of Chaffey and others, who believe they can force me to yield the treasure which they imagine I have buried. I once conveyed to Chaffey the impression that I could find $100,000 worth of treasure of Boston. On that he has worked, and on that statement he has nullified my defense, undermined my efforts to regain my liberty and debauched my sanity."

"All that I want is a chance to address a right and fair-minded jury on my own behalf and show how my lawyers so desperately slipped up on my case. If I can only secure the chance I crave I may succeed in establishing my innocence before the eyes of the world and once more be a free man."

A Post reporter took the above confession to Charles Street Jail, wrote a message, telling Chaffey of Barrett's statement and offering to show it to him and said that it deeply concerned himself. Chaffey's answer was: "Acting on the advice of my solicitor, I have nothing to say at present in regard to the matter."

The letter states that he has written a letter to the governor in relation to the whole matter, in which he besought a new trial in order to show his innocence, but he has not heard from him.

THE TURKISH TURMOIL.

Empire's Past, Present and Future Discussed by Tewfik Pasha.

Terrell Looking to Welfare of Missionaries.

Order Said to Have Been Restored at Nearly All Points.

(Copyrighted, 1895.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 25.—A representative of a press association had an interview with the political situation with Tewfik Pasha, the minister of foreign affairs. The pasha received his visitor kindly, and readily answered all the questions put to him, not only on the political aspect of the affairs, but as to administrative measures contemplated or in force.

In brief, Tewfik Pasha assured the correspondent that everything possible was being done for the protection of the American and other missionaries in Asia Minor, and that the government was desirous of leaving the interior quiet so no under escort. In view of the troubled state of the country, Tewfik Pasha suggested that perhaps this would be the best course to adopt for the present, and that the work of the missionaries could be resumed later when matters were brighter.

The minister, however, said that the latest news received by the government from the provinces was more reassuring than it had been for some time past. Everywhere, he added, on the arrival of the troops, order was being restored, and the Armenians were not being severely treated.

Referring to the measures adopted by the government with the view of bringing about the restoration of order in Asia Minor, the minister of foreign affairs said he had no doubt the reforms would be strictly carried out and that the government would shortly be able to announce the complete restoration of order in Anatolia. He declared that the commission appointed to supervise the reforms was actively prosecuting its labors, and that the officials who were to be appointed to the various posts. The names of these officials will be published at an early date.

Armenians, of Course.
As to the cause of the disturbances, Tewfik Pasha expressed the opinion that there was no possibility of doubting that they were caused by the revolutionary committees of the Armenians, who had for a long time past been sending agents to Asia Minor, stirring the inhabitants against the authority of the sultan, and doing everything possible to bring about outbreaks against the local authorities, which, when suppressed by the latter, were classed as massacres, and exaggerated the ground for complaint.

He cited one instance in which a mob of Armenians attacked and killed two Armenian soldiers, and the Turkish gendarmes thereupon attempted to arrest the murderers. The Armenians resisted desperately, and a serious affray was the result, during which six Armenians were killed and about a dozen were wounded. Some time later the soldiers were retold by the Armenians, and when it reached Constantinople the affair had grown into the massacre of about 300 Armenians in cold blood, with all the accompanying horrors which the Armenians usually decorate their stories of such affairs.

As to the prospect of European intervention in Turkey, Tewfik Pasha could only say that he saw no probability of such a step being necessary, as the powers, he added, were assured that the sultan was in earnest in doing everything possible to restore order in Asia Minor, and they were not likely to do anything which would in any way hamper his efforts in this direction.

As to the great difficulties experienced by the government, said the pasha, in restoring order in the troubled districts, was the trouble they were having in calling out the reserves. The government's efforts were also hindered by the state of Turkish finances, and by the large sums it was necessary to borrow in order to provide for the arming and supplying of the soldiers to be sent to the troubled districts.

In conclusion, Tewfik Pasha assured his visitor that all the tales of alleged horrors coming from Armenia and elsewhere should be taken with a considerable amount of salt, as they are wholly manufactured by the Armenians, or else so strongly colored by them as to be no longer recognizable even by their concoctors.

Quiet Restored.
No news was received from the interior yesterday, except from Marsovan, where all was quiet, though apprehension was felt for safety of the American missionaries located at Marsovan, and the houses were carefully protected.

The sultan yesterday sent a message to Minister Terrell to the effect that no disturbances had been reported from the Anatolia peninsula on Friday or Saturday. A report became current that the governor of Hadjin had threatened to bury the convent of the town and the bary day set around the Minister Terrell thereupon informed the sultan's porte that any of the missionaries at Hadjin were injured in any way, he would demand and obtain the governor's head. The lady missionaries were safe up to noon yesterday.

A batch of official dispatches has been published, repeating that order has been completely restored almost everywhere, except at Sivas, owing to the measures which the government has adopted.

It is officially announced that several notables and persons in authority at Erzurum have apologized to Shakhir Pasha for the disorders provoked at that town by Armenian revolutionists.

The Christian bishops at Ourla have telegraphed the grand vizier that their safety is now assured.

The sultan has ordered that the corn collected in the form of tithes shall be distributed among the needy inhabitants of Sivas and Kharpis.

The horror of the present situation is found in the fact that the government is without money. The sultan is anxious to stop disorders, but lacks funds with which to pay the troops.

The opinion prevails in diplomatic circles that a European conference is indispensable in the settlement of the Turkish question, for, although the powers have agreed, this agreement cannot be changed into action, for fear of drawing Europe into a dangerous Eastern situation. The winter snows will keep the Asiatic provinces quiet, but something must be done before springing revives the excitement.

and Macedonia is brought into the more than.

Consuls estimate the loss of property as a result of the Diarbekir riots alone at $2,000,000.

General alarm still continues here, do spite reassuring reports from the provinces and the wealthy Armenians sleep at the hotel in preference to remaining at their own homes.

The Armenians fear that the pacification of the disturbed provinces will be at extremely difficult task, owing to the probability that the measures adopted will not be of an impartial nature, that the Mushumiz will be favored by the Turkish officials and that the Christians will be oppressed.

Owing to the fact that the police have all covered a number of revolutionary places, posted in the Pasham quarter of Stamboul the Armenian shops there have been closed and extra precautions to prevent trouble are being taken. Several arrests have been made, and it is likely that more will occur before long. The police are striving hard to discover where the Armenian revolutionary placards are printed, but, so far, they have not met with success.

One of the placards torn down in the Pasham quarter called upon the Armenians to arm themselves, as they were about to be massacred, and another, printed in the Turkish language, stated that at the latest sign of anything against the Armenians were to be slaughtered.

As the Turkish authorities are charged with having taken advantage of much less than this in order to make an attack upon the Armenians, the matter was promptly brought to the attention of the British charge d'affaires, Mr. Herbert, who immediately informed the pasha that he would hold the government responsible for any disturbance of order in the Pasham quarter, taking the ground that the authorities had ample time to take all the precautions necessary to maintain peace without resorting to bloodshed.
